

- Go to <http://www.unodc.org/unodc/multimedia.html> and click on links to watch short videos about human trafficking. (You need a fast Internet connection for this.)

The screenshot shows the UNODC Office on Drugs and Crime website. The main content area is titled "Multimedia" and features a news item: "UNODC anti-human trafficking video spot wins the short film category at the First United Nations Documentary Film Festival in May 2005." Below this, there is a section for "Public Service Announcements" (PSAs) featuring a video of a young boy. The page includes several links for downloading video and audio content, such as "English 60 seconds" and "English 30 seconds" (both in .mpg format), and "Trafficking in Human Beings" in both video and radio formats. A sidebar on the left contains various navigation options like "News and Publications", "Drug Abuse & Demand Reduction", and "Terrorism, Corruption & Human Trafficking".

Click on these places to see video or hear the audio.

- Go to <http://www.polarisproject.org> and click on Info Packet, then Human Trafficking Fact Sheet.

The screenshot shows the Polaris Project website. The header includes the Polaris Project logo and the tagline "Combating Human Trafficking and Modern-day Slavery". The main content area features a large image of a woman and a navigation menu with options like "Our Programs", "Take Action", "About Us", and "Donate". A "Quick Links" section is visible at the bottom, containing links for "Fellowship Program", "U.S. Policy Alert", "Slavery Still Exists Campaign", and "Info Packet | Job Openings".
